IMPACT AID SURVEY CARDS

Every year local school districts must apply for Federal Impact Aid funds from the U.S. Department of Education. These funds compensate school districts for the loss of local tax dollars from tax exempt federal property in the area.

Schools must conduct a federal residence and employment survey on a yearly basis to obtain a current count of families in the district who live on/or work on federal property. This survey is critical to each district's resources for students. The results of the Impact Aid survey help support each district's request for these federal funds. (continued on pg.4)

Navy School Liaisons Provide SEVEN CORE SERVICES to Assist Families:

School Transition Services (PCS Cycle)

School Liaisons assist families with school transfers and help “level the playing field” for military children and youth.

Deployment Support

School Liaisons connects educators and families with the military deployment support system to inform them about the cycles of deployment and tools to assist educators and parents/guardians in working with military children.

Command, School and Community Communications

School Liaisons serve as subject-matter experts for installation commanders on K-12 issues, helping to connect command, school and community resources.

Home School Linkage and Support

School Liaisons assist military families by gathering and sharing information on home schooling issues, policies and legislation from local school districts, and help leverage Navy CYP resources to support these families.

Partnerships in Education (PIE)

PIE creates a volunteer network of resources to support installation and community members who have a vested interest in the success of all youth.

Post-Secondary Preparations

School Liaisons leverage installation and school resources to provide graduating military-connected students with access to post-secondary information and opportunities.

Special Needs System Navigation

School Liaisons provide information about installation and community programs and services, make referrals to the Exceptional Family Member Program (EFMP), and offer assistance in navigating the administrative systems within local education agencies.

Post-Secondary Preparation

Scholarship Season

Do you have a graduating senior or college student? Do you have a high school junior that is planning to attend college? Contact your installation's School Liaison and request the military-connected scholarship list. Seniors and college students can apply for scholarships for the next academic year according to each organization's criteria. Juniors, reviewing the list and knowing what scholarships they can apply for helps them be prepared for next year's applications.

FAFSA Opens October 1st

Affordable college and career training opportunities are available for everyone. The first, best step is to apply for financial aid via the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA). Students should apply for financial assistance as soon as possible after October 1.

Apprenticeships Provide a Unique Post-Secondary Option for Students

Apprenticeships offer a distinctive post-secondary option for students in the United States. Unlike traditional academic pathways, apprenticeships provide a combination of on-the-job training and classroom instruction, allowing students to gain practical skills and knowledge in a specific trade or profession. This hands-on approach enables individuals to develop valuable expertise while earning a wage, making apprenticeships an attractive alternative to traditional higher education. Additionally, apprenticeships often lead to industry-recognized certifications or credentials, enhancing employability and opening doors to rewarding career opportunities.

Joining a Military Academy

Joining a military academy is a significant and rigorous process that requires careful preparation and dedication. Military academies are institutions that train future officers for the armed forces, and they typically offer a four-year undergraduate education along with military training and leadership development. Here are the general steps to consider if you are interested in joining a military academy:

Research and Choose an Academy: Research the different military academies and determine which one aligns with your goals and interests. Visit their official websites and view pre-recorded video admissions briefs and/or visit in-person admissions information sessions. In the United States you can consider the United States Military Academy at West Point, the United States Naval Academy, the United States Air Force Academy, the United States Coast Guard Academy and the U.S. Merchant Academy (USMMA).

Meet Eligibility Requirements: Ensure you meet the eligibility requirements for admission to the academy of your choice. These requirements may include age limits, citizenship status, physical fitness standards, and educational prerequisites.

Apply for Nomination: Most military academies in the United States require candidates to obtain a nomination from a member of Congress, the Vice President, or a service branch (e.g., Army, Navy, Air Force). Start the nomination application process early, as it can be competitive.

Complete the Application: Once you have secured a nomination, complete the academy's application, which typically includes essays, standardized test scores (SAT or ACT), academic transcripts, letters of recommendation, and a comprehensive medical examination.

Interview: Be prepared for an interview as part of the application process. This interview may be conducted by academy staff or a selection committee.

Physical Fitness: Military academies place a strong emphasis on physical fitness. Maintain a high level of physical fitness and prepare for the Physical Aptitude and Fitness Test (PAFT) or a similar test required by the academy.

Joining a Military Academy

Attend Candidate Visit Weekends: If invited, attend candidate visit weekends or summer seminars at the academy to get a firsthand experience of the academy's culture and training.

Complete the Candidate Fitness Assessment (CFA): The CFA measures physical fitness and is a crucial part of the application process for some academies. Prepare for it to ensure you meet the fitness standards.

Medical Qualifications: Department of Defense Medical Examination Review Board (DoDMERB) schedules medical exams for all officer accessions. DoDMERB medical exam will be scheduled when candidates complete 50% of application. Each Service Academy/officer accession program has different standards for entry.

Stay Informed: Keep in touch with your admissions counselor and stay informed about important deadlines and requirements throughout the application process.

Prepare for Interviews: If selected for an interview, practice your interview skills and be ready to discuss your motivations for attending the academy and your commitment to serving in the military.

Receive an Appointment: If you are selected, you will receive an appointment to the academy. Accept the appointment and complete any additional requirements, such as background checks and security clearances.

Complete Basic Training: Upon entering the academy, you will undergo basic military training, which is physically and mentally demanding.

Pursue Your Education: While at the academy, you will work towards a bachelor's degree and receive military training to become an officer in your chosen branch. Each Service Academy has their own core curriculum schedule.

Joining a military academy is a challenging but rewarding path to a career in the armed forces. It requires dedication, discipline, and a strong commitment to serve your country as an officer. Be sure to follow the specific application guidelines and requirements of the academy you are interested in, as they may vary from institution to institution.

PARTNERSHIPS IN EDUCATION

Your Command Can Be a Partner in Education!

School partnerships can be beneficial for Navy commands and area schools. Sailors get an opportunity to connect with their community while earning community service hours which can be included in evaluations, and toward earning the Volunteer Service Medal. The benefits for the schools are insurmountable. Students build positive relationships with our service members and feel additionally connected to their military community. Ultimately it raises awareness of the benefits of working with the military community and helps to support our military children in education.

Command Support Opportunities

- Provide Navy personnel to be guest speakers at schools.
- Plan field trips to the command to reward students for academics and citizenship.
- Provide a military presence at special events, assemblies, or running clubs.
- Provide tutoring and extra help during homework clubs.
- Assist with school self-help projects.
- Share an expertise or hobby with students.

These are only a few ways to get involved!

Home School Support

Military Families and Home School

Military families may choose to homeschool their children for a variety of reasons, just like civilian families. However, the unique demands and lifestyle associated with military service can influence this decision in specific ways. Here are some reasons why military families might opt for homeschooling:

1. Frequent Relocations: Military families often move to different duty stations every few years. This can disrupt a child's education and make it challenging to maintain continuity in their schooling. Homeschooling provides flexibility and consistency in their education, as they can continue their curriculum regardless of where they are stationed.
2. Inconsistent School Quality: Schools near military installations can vary in terms of quality and resources. Homeschooling allows parents to have more control over the quality of education their children receive, ensuring it meets their standards and requirements.
3. Special Needs: Some military children have special educational needs, such as learning disabilities or medical conditions, that require individualized attention. Homeschooling allows parents to tailor the curriculum to meet these unique needs.
4. Flexibility: The unpredictable nature of military life, with changes in duty assignments and schedules, can make traditional school attendance challenging. Homeschooling offers greater flexibility in adapting to these changes.
5. Family Bonding: Frequent separations due to deployments can make family time precious for military families. Homeschooling can promote stronger family bonds by allowing more time together and potentially involving the military parent in the child's education.
6. Travel Opportunities: Military families often have opportunities to travel and experience different cultures. Homeschooling can be a way to incorporate these experiences into the child's education, providing a more enriched and diverse learning environment.

It's important to note that homeschooling requires dedication, time, and resources from the parents, and it may not be the best choice for every military family. Families should carefully consider their individual circumstances, the needs of their children, and the legal requirements for homeschooling in their respective locations before making this educational choice. Contact your installation's School Liaison to learn more about State specific laws and policies as well as installation and community resources available to you!

To start the 2023-2024 school year, the NAS Whiting Field School Liaison, Dawn Kaunike, had the privilege of participating in the annual A4L trainings at Milton High School, Pace High School, Gulf Breeze High School, and Navarre High School. Each A4L team consisted of an administrative POC, two or three adult advisers, the Military Family Life Counselors, and up to 20 student team leaders. The student leaders were trained on the Anchored4Life's features to instill positive youth development and to focus on the 7 C's of Resilience as they develop lifelong skills. The A4L team leaders are responsible for implementing the A4L features by hosting monthly meetings, providing campus tours, facilitating REALTALK opportunities, distributing A4L kits, sharing positive quotes, completing two service projects, and by providing ongoing support to their school and community. The trainings were a huge success thanks to Dr. Shawna Harlin-Clifton, Executive Director of A4L. The excited A4L teams left the training confident and ready to provide stellar support!
